

Lantania revamps its corporate website with added information and features

- The website improves the browsing experience and the quality of its content to offer a more straightforward overview of the Group
- Tyspa launches its new website which can be accessed through a subdomain of Lantania

Madrid, 4 October 2022. Lantania has revamped its website www.lantania.com providing it with more content and new features that make it more accessible and easy on the eye. The new website design improves the browsing experience and conveys the infrastructure, water and energy company's commitment to building a more sustainable future. The website has updated its look & feel, with easier and more dynamic access to all information.

It has also improved the quality of its content to offer a more straightforward overview of the company. The home page provides direct access to the website of each of the companies that are part of the Lantania Group. It also includes each company's business lines and main characteristics, as well as current news and up-to-date information about them.

The website uses a linear structure with an ordered hierarchy and a drop-down navigation menu with four categories: About Lantania, Business Lines, Press Room and Contact. Company divisions: Infrastructure, Water, Energy, Building and Services, which are accessed through Business Lines, remain the main focus of the website. The information on these companies has also been added to, with a detailed description of their activities and the areas they are made up of, including a technical file on the most important projects of each one.

Environmental, social and corporate governance is gaining prominence on the website. It offers direct access to company documentation such as the Progress Report, the Code of Ethics or certifications, among others. In addition, information on sustainability, quality and environmental policy, energy efficiency and health and safety can be consulted there. All the Group's news is available in the press room, where you can also access publications, videos and images.

The responsive website, which adapts to optimise the user experience depending on whether they are using a mobile, tablet or computer uses the Group's corporate colours, with red being the most prominent one. The website has better quality images and font, which, along with its dynamic components and loading speed, boost its usability. The website is available in two different languages, Spanish and English, and has been designed by PSD studio.

Tyspa launches new website

Lantania's website incorporates the new website of Traviesas y Prefabricados de Aragón (Tyspa) www.tyspa.lantania.com. It sports the Group's visual identity and offers a complete overview of the precast concrete company that has been part of Lantania since 2020. Typsa's website provides its users with detailed information on all its products and presents its most important projects. The website is available in both Spanish and English.
